

PO Orders Zip Code for Every Town

The five-digit ZIP codes for all outlying post offices affiliated with the Hope Sectional Center were announced today by Postmaster Robert Wilson, as the July 1 deadline for national implementation of the new improved mail service program neared.

The Hope post office had earlier been designated as a ZIP Code Sectional Center(s) serving 47 affiliated post offices within the immediate area. Also announced earlier were the ZIP-Code numerals serving this city.

In announcing the ZIP Codes for nearby affiliate post offices, Postmaster Wilson stressed the importance of each citizen learning the zone number for his community, and using that number in the return address of all his correspondence.

"In answering mail," he said, "ZIP Codes taken from return addresses on incoming mail should be used."

"The ZIP Code is literally the last word in mail addressing," Mr. Wilson said. "It should follow the city and state in addresses."

He said that when the national ZIP Code plan is in full swing it will provide the United States with the most modern system of mail distribution and dispatch in existence, cutting as much as 24 hours off the time between mail deposits and deliveries and greatly reducing the chance of mis-sent letters.

The Postmaster cited this example of ZIP Code, properly used:

The Woman in the Case Is Guarded

LONDON (AP)—Scotland Yard put an emergency guard on Christine Keeler today after anonymous tipsters warned that the life of the 21-year-old woman in the Profumo scandal was in danger. Extra detectives patrolled outside her West End apartment. She was told she could leave it only with a plainclothes escort and must keep clear of anyone carrying a coat or anything that could conceal a gun or knife.

"We are treating this seriously," said a police spokesman. "We received three separate calls saying she was in danger."

Miss Keeler, for five months the mistress of former War Minister John Profumo, is to testify at the trial of Dr. Stephen Ward, 50, the socialite osteopath charged with living off the proceeds of prostitution.

Two of her ex-lovers—both Jamaican Negroes—already are in jail for attacking her.

Scotland Yard men investigating the Ward case grilled Profumo, 48, for two hours Wednesday. They also disclosed that on Monday they had questioned Viscount Astor, on whose Cliveden Estate Ward had a weekend cottage. It was at Cliveden that Ward introduced Christine to Profumo in 1961.

Police sources said eight more men still must be questioned before the dossier on Ward is complete. Two of them were reportedly well known to the public and the others included bank officials.

Alabama Board Will File Suit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The University of Alabama Board of Trustees has taken what could be the first step toward removing three Negro students from the university system.

The board filed notice in U.S. District Court Wednesday that it would ask the 5th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn a lower court refusal to delay integration of the formerly all-white institution.

Only notice of appeal, not the text of the appeal, was filed. In effect, the appeal would ask the Negroes until racial tensions the court's permission to remove have eased in the state.

The trustees said they were appealing the May 21 judgment by U.S. Dist. Judge H. H. Grooms which overruled a board motion to modify and suspend an earlier injunction requiring integration of the school.

In that decision, Grooms refused to delay the admission of Vivian J. Malone and James A. Hood to the Tuscaloosa main campus and Dave Mack McGlathery to the university's Huntsville Extension Center.

On May 17, the judge held that a 1955 injunction abolishing racial discrimination at the university still was in force.

That court order opened the schools doors to its first Negro student seven years ago. The student, Autherine Lucy, was greeted by rioting mobs. She later was expelled for unproven charges that university officials conspired with the mobs.

The notice of appeal was signed by 11 of the 12 board members, Gov. George Wallace, an ex-officio member, did not sign the petition, but no immediate reason was given.

University attorney Andrew Thomas was a step to have the Negro students removed.

Thomas also would not comment on what the appeal would involve or when it actually would be filed with the Circuit Court in New Orleans.

McClellan Raps Rights Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. John L. McClellan said Wednesday night President Kennedy is proposing, in his civil rights program before Congress, "a federal reorganization which under the guise of justice would subvert personal liberty and compel conformity of association and social intercourse."

Hope Man Is Doing Well in Texas

Meet the new boom to Richardson mothers, Jim Edwards. The kids are out of school for the summer and in all homes the familiar cry can be heard, "Mommy, what can I do?" It's up to Mr. Edwards to supply activities for the kids.

As the new City Recreation Director, he is doing just that. A young man himself, Jim has studied at Texarkana College, Henderson State Teachers' College and North Texas State University. At the moment he lacks only nine hours for a Masters in recreation at NTSU.

What began as a boy's natural interest in high school sports grew into a life's work when Jim decided to go into physical education. A knee injury prevented him from participating in football in his college years, but he officiated in football, baseball and basketball while at Henderson.

During 15 months of duty in the Air Force, Jim held the position of Coordinator at Lockborne Air Force Base in Columbus, Ohio, and coached several ball teams in Frankfurt, Germany.

When he began work on his Masters at NTSU, he and his wife, lived in Grapevine. Jim commuted each day, while Martha took a position with the Grapevine schools as a music teacher. They now live at 414 Rustle Drive Richardson, Tex.

Right now he has a big job on his hands. Thousands of children with time on their hands is what he is most concerned about. Setting up recreation programs, managing the city pools, supervising the parks and picnic areas — these are all his duties.

"I'm trying to set up tennis lessons right now," he explains. "I'd like to teach bridge lessons, start an arts and crafts program and work out some sort of a music program. The main problem is finding people to assist in the operations. We need people who like to work with children and oldsters alike and can give of their time and talents. Of course, we'll be able to hire people for these jobs later, but right now we're working on a limited budget and want to see how these programs go over."

One idea in the works is a community sing-song type thing. "We'd like to set up a screen in one of the parks and just have the people come out and sing. All we'd have to do is get a projector and flash the words up on the screen — sort of a 'follow the bouncing ball' thing."

Jim is young. He has a 5-year old daughter of his own to entertain. Yet he spends his day taking care of other children — LOTS of other children. Remember that name, mothers. Jim Edwards is the man to thank when you drop the kids off at the pool or park to get them out of your hair for awhile.

Both Sides Say They'll Stand Pat

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Auditor Jimmie Jones stood firmly today on his position that 11 proposed state printing contracts are irregular and he said he will not sign them even if Secretary of State Kelly Bryant certifies a low bidder.

Jones told a news conference that Bryant has never answered his letter of June 13, which set out detailed objections to the contracts, and he termed "ridiculous" assertion that a poll of state printers supported Bryant's position.

"I have expressions from 16 printers supporting my position," Jones said. "Bids on these contracts should not be accepted and if accepted, not opened."

Bryant was not immediately available for comment, but he said earlier this week that he would open bids on all 73 state printing contracts including the disputed 14, on schedule at 11 a.m. Friday.

Jones said the contracts cannot be completed without his signature as a member of the state Printing Board. He said all three board members—himself, Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Treasurer Nancy Hall—must sign before the contracts are valid.

Jones said he could not understand the reported difference of opinion printers are expressing to him and Bryant.

"But regardless of whether one printer or all bidders agree or disagree," he said "I must, for what I feel is the best interest of Arkansas, take this stand."

Jones contends wording of the contracts is vague and confusing. He asked Bryant to rewrite them.

Applies Only to Certain Funds

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The attorney general's office ruled Wednesday that a 1963 act placing certain restrictions on banks in which state funds are deposited applies only to funds deposited by the state treasurer.

Act 94 requires withdrawal of state funds from any bank which charges a fee for cashing a state warrant (check).

Wednesday's opinion said the act does not apply to funds deposited by any state agency except the treasurer's office.

The opinion went to D. Leonard Lingo, an attorney for a Walnut Ridge bank.

Thinks Officers Are Fine Type

MALVERN, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus described Arkansas State Policemen Wednesday as the "finest type of men" in the state, but said some have been victims of pressure from "local politicians."

Faubus spoke to 179 boys at the annual Conference on Co-operatives.

"We have had a little difficulty," Faubus said, "but everything is fine. We have been trying to stop ticket fixing by local politicians."

The conference consists mainly of classes in the actual workings of co-operatives. The course for 411 and future farmers of America club members ends at Camp Couchdale near Malvern Friday.

Violators Must Study Traffic Law

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Little Rock traffic violators are now subject to being assigned to a six-hour course in why the law should be obeyed.

The city police department has set up a school for violators, beginning July 1, and traffic judge John L. Stullman has already assigned the first "students" to it.

Sullivan said he hopes the school will reduce both traffic violations and accidents.

Story of How Girl Received Needed Blood

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The story of how 21 pints of a rare-type blood were brought to Little Rock this week for use in open-heart surgery for an 8-year-old girl was revealed Wednesday.

When the Southwest Blood Bank of Little Rock got an order from the Arkansas Baptist Hospital for B-positive type, with a small C-negative factor, R. W. Winfrey contacted other banks at Phoenix, Ariz.; Albuquerque, N.M.; El Paso, San Antonio and Houston, Tex. and Fort Smith, Ark.

Most of the needed blood arrived Monday night, but three shipments were found stalled at Dallas.

Winfrey had to charter a plane to get the blood to Little Rock. The plane arrived at 3:30 a.m. and the blood was at the hospital 10 minutes later.

Technicians finished checking the blood for type accuracy just as Karen Sue Lykes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lykes, was readied for the operating room.

The operation on Karen, who wears leg braces from an earlier polio attack, was successful and she was reported in good condition Thursday.

Kerr Ranch Is Being Liquidated

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Kern Angus Ranch, Inc., which has one of the world's largest herds of registered Angus cattle is being liquidated. The ranch was established by the late U.S. Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla.

A statement of intent to dissolve the corporation, filed with the Oklahoma Secretary of State Wednesday, said the action was being taken "in the best interest of the stockholders."

It was disclosed Monday that Kerr's heirs were negotiating sale of his cattle interests and huge ranch in LeFlore County in southeast Oklahoma.

The statement said the corporation, formed for a 50-year period had 52,631 shares of stock outstanding.

The late senator's son, Robert S. Kerr Jr., said earlier that negotiations are in progress with undisclosed buyers for sale of substantially those lands devoted to cattle.

Kerry died in Washington Jan. 1.

Commandos Given Help Inside Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Cuban Revolutionary Council said today it had sent commando forces ashore at several places in Cuba and the invaders were being "welcomed by farmers" on the Communist-ruled island.

The council issued this "War Communiqué No. 1" which it said was transmitted from inside Cuba:

"Commandos of the Cuban Revolutionary Council have landed in different parts of Cuba and the farmers are helping them. They are continuing the action which will definitely lead to liberation of our country."

"The first reports by our forces reveal that the landings were effected without any difficulty and have the utmost cooperation of the peasants in the surrounding zone."

"These commandos, perfectly armed, have entered Cuban territory."

"They are going to transmit by radio tomorrow at 1:40 p.m. (EST) on the 40-meter band at 7018 kilocycles."

A council spokesman, Dr. Luis Botifol, declared: "This is the beginning of the liberation of Cuba."

In Washington, State Department Press Officer Richard I. Phillips said that neither the department nor its Miami office had any confirmation of a Cuban landing. "We are checking further but as of now we have nothing on it," he said.

The State Department spokesman also said that it would be difficult for any large scale invasion of Cuba to take place without knowledge of the U.S. government, which maintains surveillance of the area including reconnaissance flights over Cuba itself.

He said the department has no information that a large scale anti-Castro military operation either occurred or has been planned.

Early reports from the council gave no information on the number of invaders, but other sources said 500 men had landed.

There was no word, either, on where the landings took place, or the place from which the invasion was mounted.

Some council members were reluctant to comment, in sharp contrast to the noisy news conferences which have trumpeted previous exile forays into Cuba.

Post Offices Are Warned

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Operators of more than 40 Post Office contract stations in Arkansas will be among the some 10,000 to receive letters July 1 from Postmaster General J. Edward Day, warning that contracts will be cancelled if the premises are racially segregated.

The Post Office announced earlier this month that it would no longer tolerate racial discrimination in businesses with substations.

There are eight stations officially listed in Pulaski County—six at Little Rock and two operated from the North Little Rock post office.

Only one of the eight has a racially segregated lunch counter. There are 38 contract stations in the other 74 counties of the state, but counting Texarkana which has nine—some in Arkansas and some in Texas.

Party Peers Start Rights Legislation

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Party leaders called Congress' creaking machinery today for the start of President Kennedy's far-reaching civil rights program on a tortuous and uncertain legislative journey.

The prospects pointed toward a possible House decision in August on what then might remain of an administration package bill. It is built around proposals to end racial discrimination in privately owned businesses serving the public and to give the attorney general new legal weapons to enforce school integration.

The outlook in the Senate was for a bone-wearingly filibuster. Leaders might have to attempt to break it by continuous sessions if they could not command the two-thirds majority needed to cut off debate.

There is a definite threat that while the civil rights proposals are snailing their way around one obstacle after another, the legislative machinery might grind to a halt on other major administration proposals.

This could include Senate action on a tax reduction bill. The House might approve in July. The slowdown could extend to the regular departmental money bills for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

And in the summer dog days ahead there loomed the possibility of a Negro march on Washington with possibly a Capitol sit-in attempt.

If Southerners attempt a filibuster, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., said Wednesday in New York, there will be a nationwide protest march on Washington. The Negro integration leaders said representatives of several civil rights organizations will meet later this week to map strategy for the demonstration.

In this charged atmosphere of controversy, Chairman Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., scheduled hearings by the House Judiciary Committee next week on the package bill.

Besides the public access and school integration sections, it includes a provision authorizing the cutting off of federal funds for projects where racial discrimination is practiced.

Other less controversial sections would strengthen voting rights enforcement, create a community relations service, make the Civil Rights Commission a permanent agency and give statutory status to the equal employment opportunities committee headed by Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Celler told reporters he expects his committee to approve "a strong bill." But he declined to forecast that it would include all of Kennedy's recommendations.

He noted that an expansion of the manpower training the President asked for is covered in another measure. He said a bill to set up a fair employment practices commission would be considered separately.

Complains Better Tires Needed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Purchasing Agent Mack Sturgis said Wednesday a complaint that better tires are needed on State Police patrol cars was news to him.

Sturgis said he learned of the complaint, made by unidentified troopers to legislative auditors, through newspaper accounts and later through a State Police official.

He said no such complaint was registered when he sent out questionnaires to all agencies asking for comments on quality of items bought through his office.

"If the State Police decide they want a better grade of tire on patrol cars, they'll get it," he said.

Rev. Chesnut has been pastor at Russellville since 1958. He will preside over the remainder of the assembly, which ends Monday.

Rights Measure Is Resented by Southerners

By EDMOND LEBRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Southern resentment against President Kennedy's sweeping civil rights program may make it impossible to enact a tax cut until next year, if then.

Congressional sources close to the strategy behind the President's $10-billion tax cut proposal said today the situation shapes up like this:

The bill faces the possibility of a slowdown in the House, but administration forces there calculate they still have a reasonable chance of passing it this year.

In the Senate, however, the outlook is dimmer. Even if the bill moves on schedule through the House, it is doubtful Congress will remain in session long enough to allow time for protracted Senate hearings and debate on the measure. Any delay in the House would lengthen the odds against passage this year.

If the civil rights bill is brought to debate ahead of the tax revision, hitherto the No. 1 administration measure, all bets are off.

Backers of the tax measure are haunted by what they regard as two ominous possibilities:

1. Southern members under pressure to fight civil rights bills tooth and toenail will feel obliged to build up an anti-Kennedy voting record on all issues—including the tax bill.

2. The civil rights fight, including an almost inevitable filibuster, could break out in the Senate while that body's Finance Committee still has the tax measure under consideration. In that case, Chairman Harry Flood Byrd, D-Va., has said, he will suspend sessions on the fiscal bill while the civil rights debate is on.

Byrd is one of three Southern committee chairmen who more than other members control the fate of the tax measure. The others are Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee which is still writing the bill, and Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., of the House Rules Committee, to which the bill must go for clearance.

Arkla-Union Fail on Agreement

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Arkansas, Louisiana Gas Company and the Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union failed to reach an agreement during labor negotiations Wednesday, but another meeting was set and no strike was expected.

A spokesman for the Federal Mediation Service said the second meeting will be held at the mediation service office in Oklahoma City Friday.

Wages are the key issue in negotiations, the spokesman said, but several other complicated matters remain unresolved.

About 400 Arkla employees in Kansas and Oklahoma are involved in the dispute.

Riots Bring Arrests in Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Hundreds of Negroes were in custody today after a wild night of rioting in which a police officer and three white men were injured and windows shattered by roving bands of Negroes downtown.
Tear gas was used to disperse the crowds in this racially tense seaport where anti-segregation demonstrations have been in progress for 2 1/2 weeks.
Fifty-two state patrolmen aided police. The troopers were sent to the city several days ago by Gov. Carl E. Sanders.
Police said 137 men, an undetermined number of women—possibly as many as 100, and 100 juveniles were arrested.
The jail was unable to hold all those arrested and some were sent to a stockade at Travis Municipal Airport.
Police said the trouble began

Russia Hails First Woman Astronaut

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—A curly-haired blonde with cornflower blue eyes was hailed today as the world's longest distance woman flier—though she never has flown a plane.
The Soviet Union's space duct, dimple-chinned Lt. Valentina Tereshkova, 26, and her male partner, Lt. Col. Valery Bykovsky, 28, landed deep in Siberia Wednesday after epic cosmic flights.
The Soviet press and radio hailed the feat of the world's first space girl as a revolution in "the role of the weaker sex in modern society."
"Now the name of a woman will stand for centuries among the glorious names of the first discoverers," Tass, the Soviet news agency, declared.
Valentina circled the globe more than 48 times, covering more than 1,240,000 miles in 71 hours before the braking rockets were cut loose on a signal from the ground. She returned to earth in Kazakhstan, about 385 miles northeast of the coal mining center of Karaganda.

Tass pointed out that the four American astronauts who have orbited the globe "together spent nearly 50 per cent less time in space than the 'Seagull'—the code name used by Valentina.
Bykovsky, overshadowed by the first space woman, landed nearly three hours after she did in when about 1,000 Negroes gathered outside the Holiday Inn Motel.
Demonstrators crowded around police cars called to the scene and officers began making mass arrests.
The crowd followed the paddy wagons to police headquarters, filling the street outside. Officers called for a Fire Department pumper from fire headquarters about a block away.
The crowd was so dense the pumper was unable to reach police headquarters and it was then police resorted to tear gas.
The demonstrators dispersed into roving groups.
The violence came as the aftermath of a relatively quiet day in which there were three small demonstrations and three arrests. This compared with 48 arrests Tuesday.

All the other Soviet cosmonauts, like the Americans, are trained pilots. Valentina is an experienced parachutist, with more than 170 jumps to her credit. But she has no pilot training.
"I only got a bruise on the nose," Valentina told Premier Khrushchev, who telephoned her from Moscow soon after she landed. She didn't explain how she got the bruise and said, "It will pass."
Khrushchev also telephoned his congratulations to Bykovsky, who said he landed without a scratch.
Although earlier Soviet reports indicated both cosmonauts landed inside their space capsules, a correspondent for the labor newspaper Trud reported today that she parachuted from the space ship after it re-entered the earth's atmosphere.

U.S. Open Golf Play Begins

By DON WEISS

Associated Press Sports Writer
BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — It was the eve of the 63rd U.S. Open golf championship, which began today with attention centered on the duel between defender Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, and a drawing, dapper country boy of 51 had finished his last practice round.
"Lemme tell you about that rough," said Sam Snead. "Why, sir, it must be as high as—well, four inches anyway."
"You know I hit one in there on that last hole and it's so nice and soft and fluffy and nice to walk in but it don't hold up that ball and it slls way down here."
"I took out a 5-iron and swing from here to long gone and you

Bykovsky set a new orbital record, circling the globe more than 81 times in 119 hours and covering more than 2 million miles.
He shattered the record of 64 orbits set last August in a four-day flight of Maj. Andrian Nikolayev, who made history's first dual space flight with Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich.

It was clear that Valentina's work was confined to routine reporting of mechanisms in her space ship and that she had manipulated none of the vital controls.

When the field of 150 teed off by the dawn's early light today, Sam Snead was beginning his 23rd consecutive attempt. In 22 previous tries, he finished in the top 10 no fewer than 11 times. In four years, he finished second.
Eighteen hole-rounds today and Friday and the awesome 36 on Saturday make up the 72-hole medal play championship, won last year by Nicklaus at Oakmont, Pa., in a playoff with Palmer.

"Why, you know, you could easy bury a cat in there. All you gotta do is throw it in there and replace the divot and put a marker over it. I only missed that fairway by maybe two, three feet. A man should have a better shot at it when you're only off a few feet than when he's 100 feet off, now shouldn't he?"

"You sure don't here or for any of these open courses. And this one here is tougher than usual because those greens are so small and those fairways aren't very wide."

"One thing about it, everybody's gotta play it and so everybody's gonna be miserable. But it's a funny thing, everybody cusses the Open but everybody can't wait to qualify for next year."

Snead, of course, is celebrated as one of the great pro golfers of all time; for the thousands of dollars he's earned from the game he helped make so popular; for the more than 110 tournaments he's won. But he's most famous for something else. He's never won the open.

When the field of 150 teed off by the dawn's early light today, Sam Snead was beginning his 23rd consecutive attempt. In 22 previous tries, he finished in the top 10 no fewer than 11 times. In four years, he finished second.
Eighteen hole-rounds today and Friday and the awesome 36 on Saturday make up the 72-hole medal play championship, won last year by Nicklaus at Oakmont, Pa., in a playoff with Palmer.

Richardson Did as Dad Wanted

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "I knew Dad would have wanted me to be back as soon as possible."

Bobby Richardson said it quietly. No dramatics. No tears. Just a simple sincere statement. Richardson's father had died Monday.

Bobby left the New York Yankees immediately for his home in Sumter, S.C., and attended the funeral Tuesday.
The little second baseman was back with the Yankees Wednesday. Nobody had expected him before Friday at the earliest. But he showed up at Yankee Stadium in time for the game with Washington Wednesday night—and it was a good thing for the Yankees that he did.

The Yanks managed only five hits against left-hander Claude Osteen and right-handed reliever Ronnie Kline. Richardson got three of them, including a two-out single in the sixth inning that launched the winning three-run rally climaxed by Roger Maris' 12th homer of the season.

"It just goes to show you what kind of a fellow he is," said Manager Ralph Houk after the Yankees' 3-2 victory. "I was surprised when he showed up in the clubhouse before the game. He could just as well have stayed home another day or two and everybody would have understood."

Texas. Last fall it beat Baylor and Texas A&M in its only games with conference members.

Houston has 17,000 students and has become a state supported school.

Rice isn't likely to vote for Houston to come into the conference but only six of the eight votes are needed.

Rice is friendly with Houston. It lets Houston use its 70,000-seat stadium for football.

From the economic standpoint, Houston can point to a potential value. It draws 55,000 for its game with Texas A&M in Houston and it has been the best draw for a nonconference member at College Station. Houston has little doubt that it would draw 70,000 for Texas and there's little question of a sellout every time it played Rice.

Houston appears to have everything necessary to qualify for membership in the conference. The main stumbling block could come from the fact that the conference schools may think their league is large enough. They like to be able to play big inter-sectional games and with nine members they would have only two outside games apiece.

It also would increase the competition inside the conference. Having to already play seven conference games is tough—it often keeps the league members from attaining high national ratings.

Cardinals Fails on the First Ballot

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church failed to elect a new Pope today on the first two ballots of their conclave to choose a successor to Pope John XXIII.

Puffs of black smoke issued from the smokestack of the Sistine Chapel at 11:54 a.m. (6:54 a.m. Eastern Standard Time), signifying that no candidate had received the required two-thirds majority, or 54 votes, in the two ballots cast this morning by the 80 princes of the church.

Another two ballots will be held this afternoon in the chapel inside the double-locked conclave area. The voting will continue at the rate of four ballots a day until a Pope is chosen.

Wright Leads in Tournament

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—It was Mickey Wright against the field today as the undisputed queen of golf led 36 pros and 74 amateurs into the opening round of the 34th Women's Western Open at Maple Bluff Country Club.

Miss Wright, the top money winner of the women's pro circuit since 1961, launched defense of her Western Open crown while seeking her seventh tournament triumph of the year. She has won more than $11,000 on the tour.

Record Output by the AP&L

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Customers of Arkansas Power & Light Co. demanded a record output of power last Friday when the temperature soared to 100 degrees.

The company recorded a maximum output at 2 p.m. Friday of 1,124,000 kilowatts, well above the previous record of 1,083,000 kilowatts set June 13.

A company spokesman said the Friday record was not expected to stand through the summer.

SWC Is Again Talking of Expansion

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF

DALLAS (AP)—Expansion talk should be breaking out again in the Southwest Conference.

There has been a wait occasioned by the entry of Texas Tech, which became a member in 1956 and a full participant in 1960 when it started in football.

The conference decided five years ago that no further applications for membership would be received until Tech and the conference reached full adjustment. No time limit was set but it would appear all adjustments have been made.

So there should be no objection if University of Houston again makes application.

At one time Houston figured it had four schools in favor of its entry. Now the number is uncertain, but it's likely Baylor still favors Houston. Texas A&M may, and Texas Tech hardly would feel justified in opposing in view of Tech's long struggle to get into the league.

Tech has made a good member. It is largely responsible for the upsurge in basketball, has drawn good football crowds although it has not yet been able to contend for the championship and it has done well in other sports.

Houston has an excellent and well-rounded sports program — good football, basketball and track teams and the nation's best golf team.

It has just completed new headquarters for its athletic program and has one of the best equipped layouts in college football. It has a top-flight coach in Bill Leoman who has said "We want a football team that the golf team can be proud of" and has announced his intentions of winning the national championship.

In football, Houston has played 29 games against Southwest Conference teams, winning 13, losing 13 and tying 3. It has broken even with Texas A&M 4-4-3—and it has shaded Texas Tech 5-3.

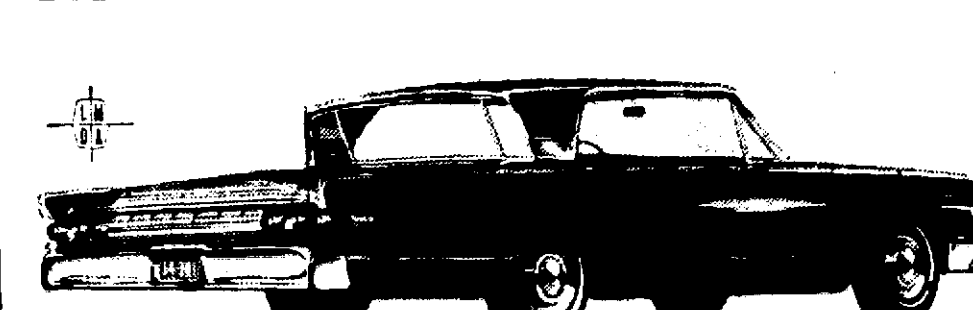

Against Baylor, Houston won three and lost four. It won one and lost one against Arkansas. It is the only game played with

TV Mystery Theater Welcomed

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—There may be at least one oasis in the summer desert of reruns on network television if Wednesday night's premiere program on NBC's "Mystery Theater" is a valid sample of the series.
"Shadow of a Man" wasn't much in the way of plot—a rather familiar treatment of insurance fraud and blackmail—but it was given a sleek and classy production and it used interesting performers.

Broderick Crawford, looking a little older, played a gruff, dyspeptic but heart-of-gold insurance investigator on the trail of some funny stuff involving one of his company's agents.
Jack Kelly, late of "Maverick," played his more romantic, impressionable assistant. Ed Begley was the suspect.

Nothing very unexpected happened, even the violent windup with a murder and fatal automobile accident, were easily anticipated. But it did provide an hour of what might be categorized as light summer—or hammock—viewing.

Crawford and Kelly might be a good team for an action series built around Wednesday night's characters.

Television odds and ends.
Merv Griffin isn't suffering any unemployment woes. Not only has he committed himself to a full season of summer stock and CBS' "Talent Scouts" show, but he'll preside over a weekly musical series on CBS-Radio for the summer. They ought to carry him nicely until his NBC "Shopping Spree" starts in the fall.

ABC will have Allen W. Dulles, former director of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Agency, talking about the Profumo affair, Communist subversion from Cuba and other timely subjects on "Issues and Answers" Sunday afternoon, June 30.
Recommended tonight: "Tonight," NBC, 11:15-1 p. m.—the only network evening entertainment show which is not showing reruns.

Transient Is Blamed at Gillette

GILLETTE, Ark. (AP)—Questioning of residents of Gillette about the Tuesday night dynamiting of a Negro church has led to belief by authorities that the bombing was done by a transient, Sheriff Harold Woodson said Wednesday.
The front door of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church was ripped off and interior doors and windows were broken by what Woodson described as no more than two sticks of dynamite, placed under the entrance door with a six-foot fuse.
"He could have been several miles out of town by the time the dynamite went off," Woodson said.
The sheriff said no arrests had been made by late Wednesday night. Authorities said they had found no reason for the bombing. No racial unrest was reported in the community of 678 persons.
No one was injured in the blast that occurred about 9 p. m. The FBI, State Police and sheriff's deputies are investigating.

Publicity Now a Part of Churches

By MARIE PRICE
NEW YORK (AP)—Are public relations techniques suitable for church use?

A 385-page "yes" answer has been written by the Rev. Thomas J. M. Burke, S.J., director of public relations for Jesuit Missions, in a doctoral dissertation said to be the first one on public relations for religious institutions.

"All religious groups, at every level of American society, can and should use organized public relations techniques to remove unnecessary conflict and misunderstanding among themselves and between religious groups and society at large," says Father Burke.

He was awarded a Ph. D. degree June 5 from New York University.

In his thesis, Father Burke outlines how all creeds can utilize the elements of planning and continued direction that are essential to a successful public relations campaign.

His view is this:
The basis of public relations is to persuade people. Religious groups aim at persuading people of an ethical truth they think is usable.

So, using techniques highly developed by professional public relations men can enable churches to promote religious and social values in society, communicate better with their own people, and further cooperation among denominations.

If religious values are to have the place they should have in people's lives, he says, "public relations will have to be utilized lest the field be left only to values being promoted by business and government."

There is nothing inherently wrong with business and government values, Father Burke believes, but they are limited. "And in every community where the impact of religious values is lost, the community as a whole loses," he says.

Educational TV Money Available

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus said Wednesday night $470,000 appropriated by the 1963 legislature on an "if available" basis for educational television needs of the state would be available.

Newsmen questioned the governor and T. E. (Tom) Tyler of Little Rock, chairman of the Arkansas Educational Television Commission, for 30 minutes during a program on Little Rock Channel 7 (KATV).

When the legislature appropriated the funds, it stipulated they must come from surplus money. Tyler told newsmen he had gambled and won by asking for the money from surplus funds, rather than from a more certain source.
The governor's announcement meant the television commission will begin operations with about $720,000 including $250,000 assured in federal matching funds.

The commission will build and operate one or more educational stations by 1965. Tyler said after the program that a station would probably be in operation from Little Rock by September 1964.

Both Tyler and Faubus said that educational television in Arkansas would be designed to meet the needs of school districts receiving the programs and that the broadcasts would be coordinated with the state Department of Education.

They also maintained that the program would be without any aspect of federal control, although federal matching funds would be used.

Faubus said most money for operation of the stations will come from public funds though some money may be donated by foundations and private individuals.

Total cost of the operation, the two men said, will depend on the number of stations operated and the amount of service they provide.

DOROTHY DIX

HUSBAND A NIGHT OWL By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: My husband turns night into day. From dark to dawn he prowls through the rooms like some nocturnal animal, plays TV, raids the refrigerator and when he does come to bed sits up reading the newspapers.

By the time he's dropped off to sleep I'm a wreck, having been kept awake all night. But wreck or not, I've got to get up and get the children off to school. Once their father is asleep we all must pussyfoot; talk in whispers and muffle the telephone.

But let's rowdy friends drop in when we're trying to sleep and you can hear them all over the neighborhood. When I protest he complains that I'm trying to run his life and puts up an argument about some people being born night owls—of which he is one. Whatever can I do about this big bully whom I call Husband? —Sleepy Wife

Dear Sleepy Wife: He sounds like a man who needs his own bedroom, if you have a spare one large enough to accommodate his TV set, all the current newspapers and most of his noisy friends. Suggest that he soundproof the ceiling and walls with acoustical material, retreat there when the rest of you are sleeping in schedule, and make all the noise he wants.

The chances are he won't like the idea, because part of his noise results from need of attention. He can't be quietly alone, which doesn't make him unique in this blaring age, but which does say something about his resourcefulness.

The chances of changing his hours aren't too good. He is evidently a genuine nocturnal type with a metabolism working on all six burners when yours is quieting down for the night. We seem to be divided into day and night people according to individual patterns of activity peaks and valleys. President Eisenhower was getting pretty sleepy about the time Khrushchev began stomping around the Kremlin to do a "day's" work.

I've known families in which the husband was the daybird and the wife the nocturnal cricket. This often results in the husband getting at least his own breakfast, and sometimes feeding the young, while mother snoozes. Most often, I suspect, the situation is like yours.

You can do several things in self-defense. Buy him a small spot-light-type reading light. Stuff cotton in your ears. Wear a light, black cloth eyeshade. Ask your man to build a "divider" in the center of the headboard of your double bed (if you have one) just long enough to shield your eyes from his reading light. Give him such a dose of his own medicine that he gets the point. Let the phone ring. Stamp around like elephants. Slam doors. When he comes to you with bloodshot eyes and asks for an armistice, tell him fine and dandy. The terms will be simple: Even trade — quiet nights for quiet mornings. The owl and the doe have worked this out in the forests and you can too.

Dear Helen: My best girl friend is a Mrs. Jekyl and Mrs. Hyde. One day she will be sweet as sugar, the next she flouts my friendship. I'm the steady, loyal type. Her capricious ways cause me much unhappiness. I try to make other friends and have succeeded but miss her. Please tell me what to do. —Just Another Lonely Girl

Dear Lonely Girl: I'm glad you have succeeded in making other friends besides your erratic "best" friend. Invariably the happiest people are those with the largest number of friends. They needn't all be the same type, or even age. The wider the variety, the better. Keep enlarging the circle too. One of the most amazing people I ever knew was a woman in her eighties who kept making new friends as fast as, if not faster, than her old ones died off. They were in all walks of life and they kept her youthful in outlook, if not in actual age.

At the other extreme, I also know a couple who live in such a limited circle that, without exaggeration, they do not have a single friend who does not belong to the same political party as they do. If your friend's capricious ways make you unhappy, simply avoid her on those days when she is behaving like Mrs. Hyde. Do this for her sake as well as yours. She'll probably try to control her moods when she has to suffer their consequences. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Petty Tyrants."

Dear Helen: I love school and am very popular. One thing bothers me. I don't like to dance. All through this term now ending, dancing was substituted for a P.E. class. It got so I hated Friday and developed pains and aches which weren't there to avoid attending. I got the rhythm and steps all right but can't see wasting my time going through those silly motions. My grades and popularity have slumped because of this problem. The big social event of our school year is the prom this week. I just don't see how I can face it. Should I play sick? —Katie

Dear Katie: You don't want to be sitting at home when something exciting might be happening at the high school prom. It's not necessary to be a ballerina to have a good time at a dance. At the very least, you can laugh at some of the others "going through those silly motions." Seriously, though, participation is the key to happiness in life, not withdrawal.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Syphilis Is Increasing in the U.S.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Syphilis, the "great pox" of medieval times, is resurging in the United States, and there may be as many as 1.2 million hidden cases, a top U.S. Public Health Service's venerable disease fighter said today.

Dr. M. Brittain Moore Jr., chief of the agency's VD Research Laboratory, Atlanta, said in a report prepared for the American Medical Association convention that the malady is being reported with increasing frequency throughout the country.

During 1962, he said, there were some 124,000 reported cases—including more than 21,000 in infectious, transmissible stages, the greatest number in the latter category since 1950.

Reasons for the rise in cases he declared, include:

Business Money Is Flowing Fine

AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK (AP) - Dollars speak louder than rosy forecasts to businessmen—and to workers and investors and job seekers. So, however promising the future looks to the planners, what really counts for the nation's retailers and producers and all other citizens is how the money is coming in right now.

For most it is coming in very well indeed.

The total of wages and salaries is rising. The sums that stockholders are getting in dividends are at a record high, because the net profits of U.S. corporations have gone up despite the complaints of a profit squeeze.

Retailers are taking in more money, even if they'd like to ring up more. Savings institutions are taking in more money, too.

Builders are starting more houses. Factories as a whole are hiring more employees, despite the mechanization that in some industries means turning out more goods with fewer workers. The average work week has increased. The service industries continue to make more jobs, although not enough more to solve the personal problems of the unemployed.

All hands realize that this could change—either way. The expected slight summer letdown could be extended and then the money wouldn't pour in as it should. Or the economy could take off to new heights as the forecasters in Washington hope.

But today the dollars and cents figures speak loud.

Income is flowing into individual pockets at an annual rate of $45.2 billion, according to latest government figures. This pace is $18.5 billion faster than a year ago. It is also $1.2 billion better than in April, with most of the increase in wages and salaries.

This means that the five-point rise in the federal Reserve Board index of industrial production since the first of the year is benefitting the employees as well as the manufacturers.

But the corporations are doing all right, too. Early reports show a rise in profits in the current quarter. In the January-March quarter earnings before taxes totaled $53.3 billion, compared with $53.25 billion in the final three months of 1962 and with $50.9 billion in the April-June period last year.

Rising wage and salary payments have kept most retailers on

Business Is Still Hopeful for the Year

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst NEW YORK (AP)—It will take more than a slowdown in steel production to cool the enthusiasm of most businessmen and government economists for the prospects of the economy the rest of the year.

Steel orders and output have dropped after weeks of rising activity as customers hedged against the possibility of a strike. And auto sales and output — both now running well ahead of last year—are due to dwindle when the model changeovers start.

But most of the rest of the economy, the optimists insist, will pull ahead.

They base their enthusiasm on the general health of business with inventories mostly well in hand, the rising expenditures at various government levels, and the unshaken confidence of consumers which optimists interpret to mean that retail sales should go on rising if only modestly.

They admit the usual summer slowdown for vacations in a number of industries will soon arrive. Even the most optimistic aren't downgrading the problem of rising unemployment this summer because teen-agers can't find jobs.

But then they run off the list of strong points.

Much steel ordering has been for a strike hedge, and therefore temporary. But a sizable part of the increased sales have been to customers who needed the steel for their own increasing business. Hence, the drop in steel output may be less than feared earlier.

Auto sales in the first third of June topped year ago figures by 5.6 per cent, and currently production is 17 per cent ahead of this time last year. The holdover of 1963 models at changeover time is expected to be well below a year ago.

Industrial output is at a record high, having risen for five straight months. It is likely to dip or level off this summer, but the majority of economists still hold it will rise further in the fall.

The future of construction, currently at high level, is still a question. Business spending for new plant and equipment is far from booming, but also it is better than a year ago. Home and apartment building remains high. So, on the whole construction should bolster the economy—certainly not drag it down.

A certainty is a rise in government spending. Federal, state and local projects are being started and contracts awarded. And increased borrowing, at all levels of government, foreshadows still more spending ahead.

The recent slight tightening of credit in the short-term market doesn't discourage the optimist who points out there is still ample credit available for the long-term borrower—whether he be businessman home builder, car buyer, government official. And this ample supply is counted upon to keep long-term interest rates low enough to encourage at least a moderate expansion in the economy.

The final item on the optimist's list is taxes.

State and local taxes are rising a good deal more often than they are falling. But federal income taxes may be cut. Individuals may get a rate cut starting the first of next year, if congressional thinking follows the course presently indicated. Corporations look for relief scattered over the next two or three years.

Home and apartment building remains high. So, on the whole construction should bolster the economy—certainly not drag it down.

A certainty is a rise in government spending. Federal, state and local projects are being started and contracts awarded. And increased borrowing, at all levels of government, foreshadows still more spending ahead.

The recent slight tightening of credit in the short-term market doesn't discourage the optimist who points out there is still ample credit available for the long-term borrower—whether he be businessman home builder, car buyer, government official. And this ample supply is counted upon to keep long-term interest rates low enough to encourage at least a moderate expansion in the economy.

The final item on the optimist's list is taxes.

State and local taxes are rising a good deal more often than they are falling. But federal income taxes may be cut. Individuals may get a rate cut starting the first of next year, if congressional thinking follows the course presently indicated. Corporations look for relief scattered over the next two or three years.

Counts on Trip for More Harmony

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy is counting on his 10-day swing around Western Europe, beginning next week, to shore up the battered Atlantic alliance by strengthening ties between several key allied countries and the United States.

Beyond the nations he actually visits Kennedy hopes his personal presence on the Continent and statements on U.S.-European policy will dramatize the extent of this country's defense commitments to the allies.

Officials said today that the President will put heavy emphasis in one or more of his public statements on U.S. determination to participate in the defense of Western Europe and the beleaguered city of West Berlin.

The point is considered important because of uncertainties created in Western Europe during the past six months by French President Charles de Gaulle's insistence that the continental powers need their own means of nuclear deterrence. He claimed they could not always be sure of U.S. action in a crisis.

Whatever the President says on this point, however, officials declared, will be free of "first shaking" because he is determined to stick to the spirit of last week's speech at American University here in which he appealed for a lessening of cold war tensions and better understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union.

There have been many suggestions that in view of the political turmoil in Italy the Profumo scandal in Britain and the prospective change of leadership in West Germany, that the President should cancel or postpone his European trip. But apparently he and his chief advisers have been determined from the first to go through with it.

Officials said that a time of transition in Europe is from the President's point of view a good time to make the trip and talk with men who will have power in the future. They also argued that

Cards Continue to Lead Loop But Just Barely

By JIM BECKER

Associated Press Sports Writer

How does a team that has tried everything find a new way to lose? By messing up a triple play, that's how.

The New York Mets uncovered that new route in the fifth inning against the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday.

The Mets were leading 3-2. The Cards had runners at first and second. Leo Burke smashed a grounder to Charley Neal who stepped on third and fired to second to start a triple play. Rod Kanehl dropped the ball at second.

Curt Flood walked and Bill White promptly hit a grand slam homer, the sixth of his career.

The eventual 4-1 victory kept the Cards a half game in front of the San Francisco Giants, who trailed the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3 at Candlestick Park. The Dodgers fell 2½ games behind the Cards.

The Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs, both four games back, kept pace. The Cubs won 9-1 over Houston and the Reds beat the Philadelphia Phils 6-5 in 10 innings.

Pittsburgh pushed into a sixth place tie with Milwaukee in the other game on the card by beating the Braves 6-2.

In the American League, the first place New York Yankees edged Washington 3-2 for their sixth straight, and the second place Chicago White Sox kept up with a 12-4 hammering of Minnesota. In other games, Boston whipped Detroit 9-2, Cleveland edged Baltimore 5-4 in the opener of a doubleheader, then lost 6-2 and the Los Angeles Angels beat Kansas City 4-2 before losing the second game 4-3.

Juan Marichal pitched the San Francisco victory in his first start since he no-hit Houston last Saturday. He needed help from Billy Pierce in the eighth.

Willie McCovey got the Giants off first with a two-run homer on the first pitch thrown to him by Don Drysdale of the Dodgers. Tommy Davis tied the score with a two-run homer in the third that ended Marichal's scoreless streak at 22-3 innings. The Giants chased Drysdale with three runs in the fifth.

Ernie Banks passed two landmarks for the Cubs. He smashed the 350th homer of his career, and drove in four runs to run his total to 1,003. Carl Warwick ruined Glen Hobbie's shutout with a solo homer in the sixth.

Leo Cardenas stroked a two-out single in the 10th to score Frank Robinson who walked, stole sec-

Sikes Doing Well in the Nat'l Meet

By JOE MCKNIGHT

WICHITA (AP)—With the field halved again on the first day of match play, 16 golfers remained in pursuit today of the National Collegiate Athletic Association's individual golf championship.

The 66th annual tournament is Country Club course, here par is 70 for the 6,640 yards.

Dick Sikes, Walker Cup star and National Public Links champion, playing for Arkansas, showed in his second round that he has the stamina and skill to keep going. He had to go 21 holes to beat out James Colbert of Kansas State. On the third extra hole, a par three, Sikes dropped his tee shot 10 feet from the pin while Colbert's ball stopped 10 feet short of the Green. Sikes won it with a birdie.

Jim Ferrell of Louisville advanced steadily with 4 and 3 victories over Purdue's Clark Hellman and Charles Layton of Georgia. His opponent today was Bobby Greenwood of North Texas State, who advanced with a 4 and 3 victory over Tom Arnold of North Carolina and a 7 and 5 victory over Dave Eichelberger of Oklahoma State.

Kermit Zarley, defending champion from Houston, downed James Seely of Navy 2-up and Dave Philo of Florida State 4 and 3 in moving to the third round.

George Hixon of Oklahoma State, whose 67 in the qualifier still is the low round for the tourney, disposed of Joe Bush of Washington 6 and 5 and downed Tom Flory of Navy 1-up.

Richard Poe of Missouri scored one of Wednesday's upsets with a 1-up victory over Dave Stockton of Southern California in the second round. Poe defeated Dave Gumbia of Minnesota 5 and 3 in the first round.

Harold Glass, Missouri's other qualifier for match play, was dumped in the first round when he lost to Eichelberger 6 and 4.

McCutcheon Wins Jr. Golf Title

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Mike McCutcheon of Little Rock fired an even par 72 Wednesday to defeat Mike Mitchell of Texas for the Arkansas State Junior golf championship.

Tommy Wynne of Fordyce, who led all golfers through the first 17 holes with par play, won the title in the 14-15-year-old bracket, despite an 82 round Wednesday.

The junior matches preceded the Arkansas Open and the Arkansas Amateur tournaments, which open at the Hot Springs Country Club today.

Record Holder Won't Compete

NEW YORK (AP)—Al Oerter, world record holder for the discus throw, will not compete for the United States against Russia in their dual track meet in Moscow this summer.

Oerter, who never has lost to the Russians, was told by doctors Wednesday not to compete again in 1963 because of a slipped disc.

and went to third on two more walks. In the Cincinnati victory, Don Demeter hit two homers for the Phils.

Pitcher Earl Francis hit a double and two singles, good for three RBI, and got his third victory for the Pirates, with stout relief help from Joe Gibbon. Hank Aaron hit his 20th homer, tops in the majors, for the Braves. Mack Jones also homered for the Braves. Bob Sadowski, acquired in the Lew Burdette trade, made his major league debut for Milwaukee, but failed to last the fifth.

THIS PICTURE OWNED BY GORDON PRESCOTT OF the local ASCA office in the courthouse shows the shop of the Arkansas Evening Herald, Hope, daily, in 1913. White specks on the printing plate are due to scars on the original picture, it not having been kept under protective glass.

GORDON PRESCOTT WAS A PRINTER'S DEVIL, OR apprentice, on the daily Herald, which was owned by J. E. Perkins. It was situated on Main Street on the site now occupied by the Lehman store. Across the street where the Roy Anderson insurance agency is situated was the plant of Ed McCorkle's weekly Star of Hope, which converted to a daily in 1920.

THESE REPRESENTED THE TWO LONG LINES OF competing newspapers in Hope, the Evening Herald having descended from the old weekly Hope Gazette of the 1890s and early 1900s, and the Star of Hope, founded in 1899 by Claude McCorkle, father of Ed. The succession on the Evening Herald side of the house passed to the morning Daily News, published by D. A. Gean, (now of Siloam Springs' weekly Interstate News), which was consolidated with the Star of Hope as the present Hope Star on January 18, 1929, by the late C. E. Palmer of Texarkana and A. H. Washburn of Hope.

Little Nellie Keeps Sox Near League Lead

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

The hate-the-Yankees club, which hasn't sipped champagne since 1959, has an omen.

Nellie Fox is hitting over .300. The last time Fox hit that high, the Chicago White Sox stole into the American League throne room and toppled the New Yorkers while the club members raided the nearest wine cellar and popped enough corks to fill Yankee Stadium.

Nellie hasn't been able to approach his .306 batting mark of 1959 since, but at 35 he's in full swing again. He stroked five hits in six at-bats Wednesday night as the White Sox clobbered Minnesota 12-4 with a 19-hit attack.

Fox collected four singles and a double, raising his average from .298 to .311 while rookie Tom McCraw and veteran Floyd Robinson each hit two homers and accounted for nine runs batted in.

The triumph kept the Chicagoans one game back of the Yankees in their bid to give Manager Al Lopez another pennant. Lopez is the only manager to break the Yankees' pennant monopoly in the last 14 years. He did it with the 1954 Cleveland Indians and the '59 Sox.

The Yankees remained out in front as Roger Maris' three-run homer provided a 3-2 decision over Washington and New York's sixth straight victory.

Third-place Boston made it nine losses in a row for Detroit 9-2. Baltimore ended Cleveland's winning streak at seven games, 6-2, after the Indians had taken the opener of a twin-night doubleheader 5-4. And the Los Angeles Angels beat Kansas City 4-2 in the opener of a twinbill before the A's won 4-3.

National League leading St. Louis belted the New York Mets 9-4. San Francisco walloped the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-3, Chicago's Cubs slugged Houston 9-1, Cincinnati edged Philadelphia 6-5 in 10 innings and Pittsburgh beat Milwaukee 6-2.

Maris' three-run shot—his 12th—came after singles by Bobby Richardson and Tom Tresh in the sixth inning off Claude Osteen, a shut out winner over the Yankees the last time he faced them. Jim Bouton, 9-2, needed ninth-inning relief help to subdue the Senators, who pushed across two runs and had the bases loaded before they went down to their seventh straight setback.

Karl Yastrzemski hit a pair of homers for the Red Sox, driving in four runs, while rookie right-hander Bob Heffner checked the Tigers on seven hits in his first major league start and kept new Detroit manager, Chuck Dressen, winless. Frank Malzone also had a homer for Boston. Rookie Gates Brown connected for a pinch-hit homer for Detroit in his first at-bat in the majors.

The Indians won the opener when Joe Azcue homered in the ninth. Milt Pappas, 5-3, spaced five hits for the Orioles' nightcap victory. Willie Kirkland homered for Cleveland.

Dan Osinski, 6-3, held the A's to two hits in the opener but Bobby DelGrecio's homer left him on the short end of a 2-1 score until Jim Fregosi hit a three-run homer in the ninth off Ed Rakow, 6-5.

In the nightcap, the A's got the deciding run in the seventh inning on a single by DelGrecio, Wayne Causey's double and a sacrifice fly by Ed Charles.

Aunt Bean had greeted Smokey warmly at the door, and I suspect she had kissed him. She called to me that she thought she would go on to bed.

Smokey came alone into the room, to brush his fingers across my hair, and then to sit down in the big chair across from me, to lean his head back, stretch his legs, and prop his feet on their heels.

"Was Jim Ash glad to see you?" I asked.

"He didn't say so. But—" Smokey's eyes glinted. "—he put me right to work." He flexed his shoulders, and sighed contentedly.

"Is he . . . ?"

"Going back tomorrow. Early. He sent you his love, by the way."

"I'll keep that in mind." Smokey chuckled.

"How about your patients?"

"I think we handled things." "You look tired," I said, speaking softly.

He glanced at me. "I am tired," he agreed. "But I had to come over—to tell you just one thing."

I sat silent, basking like a cat in the warmth, and in the knowledge of his presence there in the firelight. I could wait for what he had to tell me.

I spoke of what Keyes had said about growing up.

Smokey nodded. "Yes," he agreed. "The boy did grow up today. I suspect that it was a painful process." Smokey reached into his pocket for his pipe. "I did a little growing myself today," he said thoughtfully.

I watched the fine stream of tobacco pour into the pipe bowl. I could savor deeply each familiar hint restored to me. "I was so terrified. Smokey!" I told him.

His eyes lifted to my face, and dropped again. "I'm sorry," he said gruffly.

"You—weren't you frightened at all?"

"Yes. Certainly I was frightened. He struck a match.

"You didn't show it. Not once."

"Oh, yes, I did."

"When?"

"All day," he told me, clouds of smoke spouting from his pipe. "Ha!"

"I was frightened," he assured me. "Of course I spent a considerable amount of thought and energy on concealing my feelings. But the effort itself must have shown. I—you see, I knew that all the old trouble was going to be tied into the thing. And then, you know—when it all did come out—well, it was something of a relief, really. That hidden sore spot of my life was now open, and it could heal. But I myself didn't know how really frightened I had been until I was back on the third floor of High View this evening—actually at the minute when I was putting on my boots—those clumsy, hideous things of striped ticking. Jannie! I looked at them, and all at once they were beautiful! I realized that that minute what a blessing it was for men to be allowed to do so simple a thing as to wear those boots, for they meant that I would be allowed to work again as a doctor. And I broke down then, Jannie. I fully realized then how frightened I had been, how much I had feared that I would never be allowed to work again, and—well—I ended up with a fine case of hysterics."

"All alone?"

"Bruns came in on the last of it. He's an understanding guy."

Breakfast Has Three Appeals!

Breakfast based on a cereal and milk basic breakfast pattern—fruit, breakfast cereal, milk, bread and butter.

How attractive can breakfast be? Just list the ways! Color! A bowl of crisp, brown, ready-to-eat pulled oat cereal; a wide-mouthed pitcher of chalk white milk; the streaked warmth of raisin bread, lightly buttered, sitting straight upright in a ceramic toast rack; the gleam of a silver compote holding a golden orange. Flavor! All the fragrance of these basic foods turns into flavor delight as hunger is satisfied. Promise! A light breakfast, but mighty strong in action as well as appeal. During the Iowa Breakfast Studies it was proved that a basic cereal and milk breakfast provides quick and lasting energy throughout the late morning hours. The fast tempo and strenuous demands of modern life require quick and lasting energy food rather than high-fat, slow-energy foods. The light modern basic cereal and milk breakfast provides quick and lasting energy.

U.S. Shifts to Project Gemini

EDITOR'S NOTE—With Project Mercury ended, Howard Benedict, AP correspondent at Cape Canaveral, looks to the future of manned space flights in the last of three articles.

Project Mercury—part 3

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—With Project Mercury officially concluded, the United States now shifts full attention to Project Gemini, the second phase of a plan to land astronauts on the moon before 1970.

Fortified with a mountain of data collected from six Mercury manned space flights—climaxed by Air Force Maj. Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr.'s 22-orbit mission in May—Gemini officials are moving confidently ahead.

Two-man Gemini teams will test many techniques essential for the Apollo lunar landing program. The astronauts will remain in orbit for periods up to two weeks; they will join their spacecraft with another orbiting satellite, and eventually one of the crew is to open the capsule hatch and step outside to see what it's like more than 100 miles above the earth.

Gemini presently is nearly a year behind schedule. This was a major reason space officials declared an end to Project Mercury.

Main reasons for the lag involve technical problems associated with developing a highly sophisticated spacecraft and man-rating the powerful Titan 2 booster rocket. Shortage of funds, which resulted in elimination of all but essential overtime work several months ago, also has contributed to the delay.

The Gemini spacecraft retains the bell shape of the Mercury capsule but it will be larger and weigh about 6,000 pounds, twice as much as the earlier vehicle. It will have 50 per cent greater cabin area to accommodate two pilots.

As a result of Mercury experiences, new fuel and power systems have been devised for Gemini and the emphasis will be on pilot control rather than on automatic as in Mercury.

The need for a two-man crew was explained by Gemini official Andre J. Meyer Jr.:

"For really extended flight periods, it was considered most desirable to be able to alternate rest periods and generally to lighten the load on one man."

He said two men would simplify rendezvous maneuvers and the exit of one of the pilots into space.

Dr. Stanley White of the Manned Spacecraft Center said the dual pilot arrangement will permit simultaneous medical monitoring of two men and enable the astronauts to use instruments to check one another's condition.

Present schedule calls for an unmanned mockup Gemini capsule to be launched on a brief suborbital flight from Cape Canaveral next December. An unmanned orbital flight of a complete capsule is scheduled for June 1964.

If all goes well, two astronauts—selected from the original seven Mercury pilots and the nine pilots named last fall—will make the first manned Gemini trip in October 1964. The flight presently is programmed for three days to provide basic data for long duration flights, but it could be extended.

During 1964, the length of the

Bryant to Go Ahead as Planned

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Secretary of State Kelly Bryant says he has investigated charges of state Auditor Jimmie Jones that there were major discrepancies in printing contracts, that he has found none, and that bids on the contracts will be opened on schedule Friday.

Jones said after Bryant's announcement Tuesday that the decision provided no answer to his charges that the contracts must be clarified before bids are let.

The state auditor originally questioned 12 contracts. Tuesday he added two more to the list of those that he says are unclear.

State Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst, chairman of the Legislative Joint Audit Committee, said he fails to understand the criticism of Jones. Hurst said in a letter to Legislative Auditor Orvel Johnson, "I am afraid the criticism is not going to be taken very seriously."

The contracts that Jones questioned are worth more than $500,000. Jones, who is responsible for administering the contracts after the bids are let, approved 58 of them, but told Bryant he would not sign those he questioned.

Added to Jones list of "unclear" contracts Tuesday were No. 70, which calls for changing of the forms for auto licenses, and 67, for the continuous forms for machine counting.

Jones said Bryant changed the forms without consulting Revenue Commissioner J. Orville Cheney, who did not want them altered, and that on the basis of a letter from Cheney, he would not approve the contract.

Bryant said he did not intend to handle the state printing contracts in an arbitrary manner, but that he had found no discrepancies in them.

State Can't Impose Any Religion

By JAMES MARLOW Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — In this country where people have different religious beliefs and some have none, no state can impose any religious belief or exercise in the public schools.

That's the short of the Supreme Court's historic ruling Monday outlawing the reading of the Bible and the Lord's Prayer in public schools as a religious exercise.

This goes even if students, whose parents object to the religious exercise, are excused from taking part.

But the court, whose majority opinion was written by Justice Tom Clark, did not say the Bible or religious history could not be studied in public schools as part of a general education program.

Under the Constitution, Clark said, a state must maintain strict neutrality on religious matters. "Neither aiding nor opposing religion."

Another justice, William O. Douglas, agreeing with Clark, put it this way:

"Through the mechanism of the state (unless it is banned) all of the people are being required to finance a religious exercise that only some of the people want and that violates the sensibilities of others."

The court had been working up to this decision and almost reached it, but not quite, last year in the case of New York schools where the Board of Regents had recommended the recital of a 22-word prayer at the start of each school day.

The prayer, which had been drafted by the board itself, said: "Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependency upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessing upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

But some people don't believe in God. Others, if they do, prefer to pray some other way. The court banned that prayer as unconstitutional. The opinion then was written by Justice Hugo Black.

He said for the school board to require recital of its prayer violated the first section of the First Amendment which declares, "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

In that case Black put the emphasis on the first part of the amendment — "establishment of religion" — and not the second part. But that amendment prohibited Congress from passing a law "respecting establishment of religion."

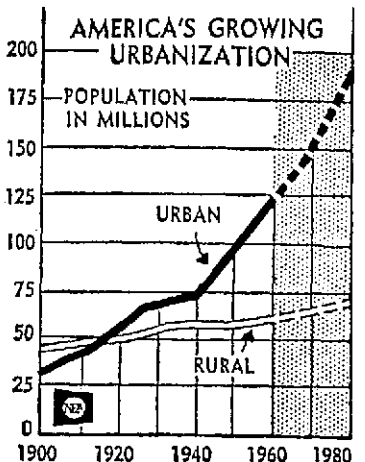

How then could Black say the states can't pass such a law? Because the 14th Amendment makes it apply to states, too, by saying, "No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States." The religious privileges are guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Black reasoned: the government has no power to "prescribe by law any particular form of prayer which is to be used as an official prayer in carrying on any government-sponsored activity."

He said: "Neither the fact that the prayer may be denominationally neutral, nor the fact that its observance on the part of the students is voluntary, can serve to free it from the limitations of the establishment clause."

NEW PRESIDENT — Mrs. Helen Wood Bauman, editor of Christian Science periodicals, was named president of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, at the annual meeting of members of The Mother Church in Boston.

CITY FOLK — The growing divergence between rural and urban populations in the U.S. is strikingly shown in Newschart, above. Last census figure was for 1960; broken lines in shaded portion are estimates up to 1980. At that time, there will be as many people (185 million) living in cities as there was total population in 1962.

But he was talking about a prayer written by a school board and imposed on the students.

He didn't answer this question: What about schools that require Bible-reading or recital of the Lord's Prayer every day but excuse children whose parents don't want them to be a party to it—even though they only have to listen and don't have to say anything?

Monday's decision was on two cases involving exactly that problem: one from Pennsylvania, one from Baltimore. In each case the court found the practice unconstitutional under that same "establishment clause" of the First Amendment.

If a state is going to compel student participation in some religious project—like studying the Bible as history—the court said the primary effect must be one that neither helps nor hinders religion.

Clark said the purpose of the First Amendment is to "secure religious liberty in the individual by prohibiting any invasion thereof by civil authority."

He added: "It is no defense to urge that the religious practices here may be relatively minor encroachments on the First Amendment. The breach of neutrality is today a trickling stream may all too soon become a raging torrent."

"In the relationship between man and religion, the state is firmly committed to a position of neutrality."

Pesticide Dangers Bring Alarm

By JOHN A. BARBOUR

WASHINGTON (AP) — This noisy spring, Congress is worried over the possibility of a silent one.

Two congressional committees are occupied with health warnings on the dangers of pesticides, demonstrations of the sex habits of the male cockroach, and cries of concern for man's feathered and furred friends.

Such is the legislative impact of Rachel Carson's popular anthology of death, "Silent Spring," and the public clamor it has evoked. Already Miss Carson has testified before one committee, and asked Congress to curb sales of pesticides, and to cut down on aerial spraying.

Beside this she wants to arm individuals with the legal right to seek redress in the courts against neighbors who spray not too well, but too widely, and allow poisons to intrude another's domestic domain.

She insisted repeatedly that she does not want to stamp out pest control—but instead wants reasonable controls on the use of pesticides.

Even before she testified the President's Science Advisory Committee had suggested there be tighter federal controls.

The committee also urged a philosophy of insect control, rather than insect eradication, by pesticide-using federal agencies.

The U.S. Forest Service—about to spray private land in Washington State—called off its plans because it couldn't guarantee the safety of oysters in nearby coastal waters.

Thus did the oysters save a pest called the hemlock looper from the ravages of DDT.

Comedian Seeks New Program

By CYNTHIA LOWRY AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A young comedian, who for reasons which will soon become apparent wishes to be anonymous, has launched a search "for something nice to say at the end of a program."

"I've got this television thing pretty well figured out," he explained. "If you want to become rich and famous, all you have to do is let the audience see what an awfully nice guy you are, and then get something warm and sweet to say at the end of a program."

The nameless young man is lost in admiration for Garry Moore's "goodnight" line—"Be very kind each other," in his judgment, the best signature in the television business.

He likes Dave Garroway's old "Peace," and finds that Bud Collyer's "God bless you" suits the panel-show moderator well, but mostly because Collyer has a reputation as a religious man.

Jimmy Durante's "Good night, Mrs. Calabash, wherever you are," while highly distinctive, doesn't really project the nice-guy image he's trying for.

"Gosh," he said. "I've been running over all sorts of lines. Like 'Keep smiling—but that's no good. Or 'Things will be better, or 'Chin up.' It's really a very hard thing, to find a short line that gives just the right impression."

He even has thought of a contest, with a prize for the person who comes up with the perfect, identifying phrase.

"But that wouldn't work out," he said. "The important thing is for people to think it comes from inside you. If you have one, people like you, and then you don't even need to have all your jokes funny or even have your show very good. The important thing is for people to know what a nice guy you are."

Steel Pact Vital to the Public

By SAM DATSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—The public's interest in a new steel labor pact—when and if it's accepted by the 11 big companies and approved by the union locals—centers on these points:

1. Will the pact raise steel production costs and thus trigger further selective price increases?
2. Will any job security measures—such as long vacations every five years or other spread-the-work measures—set a pattern for other industries?

The first point is important to the public because price increases in a basic industry tend to percolate slowly through the economy. And if the cost of living rises, so does the demand for higher wages among workers far removed from the steel mills.

Job security is a prime aim of labor this year. And it is a prime concern of the public, too.

Steel isn't the only industry where mechanization and new production methods are producing more units of goods or services with fewer man hours of labor. The unions are fighting against the shrinkage of jobs—and the public in general is alarmed by rising rates of unemployment.

Management's aim, in other industries as well as steel, is to hold down or cut the cost of production. In many fields this has been rising fairly steadily. Of late costs often increase faster than prices can be raised, because of increased competition and surplus production facilities.

The result is the profit squeeze of which management complains—that is, a lower percentage of earnings to sales even when total profits rise. As the profit margins fall, so does the incentive to expand or to try new ventures.

Negroes to Demonstrate in Detroit

An AP Special report
By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP)—A massive "Walk to Freedom" demonstration is scheduled in Detroit Sunday—the 20th anniversary of the ending of one of this century's bloodiest race riots.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Southern integrationist leader, is to head a 3 p.m. march in which sponsors are striving to enlist 100,000.

Along the scheduled downtown route of the march fell some of the 34 killed and 700 injured in Detroit's 1943 rioting. Woodward Avenue will take the marchers directly through the spot where a race riot erupted 80 years before that—in 1863.

Richard V. Marks, secretary-director of Detroit's Commission on Community Relations, says there still is "plenty of the racial discrimination and racial prejudice" which contributed to the four-day outbreak of violence 20 years ago.

Marks adds, however, he is "not the least bit concerned about the march producing violence," and James Del Rio, planning chairman for the demonstration, says "peace and order are our aim."

Del Rio, a director of the newly organized Detroit Council for Human Rights which is sponsoring the walk, says the demonstration has a two-fold purpose:

To raise $100,000 for Dr. King's Southern Christian Leadership Council, and to protest "against indignities Negroes have suffered in Birmingham and against many things going on in Detroit, particularly in jobs and housing."

The bloodshed of 20 years ago sprang from a fist fight between a Negro and a white man on a bridge to Belle Isle. Other Negroes and whites got involved in the fracas.

Fighting spread as rumors, mostly false, fed flames of hatred. It finally took federal troops, as in 1863, to put down the riot.

At the time, Negroes were flocking from poorly paid jobs in the South to Detroit's high-wage defense industries and were spilling over from mid-city slums into what had been all-white neighborhoods. Detroit's schools long had been integrated, but Negroes predominated in some and were virtually non-existent in others.

Along with the Southern Negroes, many whites from the mountains and deltas of the South also came to Detroit, bringing with them their customs and their beliefs in race separation.

Meat Prices Have Edged Upward

Weekly Food Review
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meat prices have edged upward at the nation's supermarkets, reflecting the fact marketing of meat animals has tapered off and that demand by charcoal chefs has grown.

It's hardly cause to turn vegetarian, however, because rises have not been great and the prices of many beef cuts are still low.

Also, broiler-fryers and baking hens are in plentiful supply and turkeys are being featured widely.

Greatest rises have been posted by pork products, as the seasonal flow to market continues to abate. Prices of many fresh cuts have reflected this jump. Cured meats have been slower to react, however.

At one national chain, for instance, pork chops are up 6 cents from last week to 95 cents a pound while there is a special on canned hams, a 4-pound tin selling for $2.99.

West Coast shops report several pork cuts up 1-3 cents a pound. Many Midwestern stores have hiked their charges for spareribs and other products in big demand for summer cookouts.

Porterhouse steaks and some other beef cuts with special charcoal appeal have also risen, but round and chuck roasts are still budget priced in most stores.

Lamb and veal prices have held steady and therefore offer some relative bargains in Northeastern and Midwestern markets this week.

Vegetable offerings continue to expand and competition from local farms has pushed prices down. A record high crop is foreseen for spring sweet corn and big increases are seen for celery, onions and tomatoes.

Other features this weekend include cabbage, carrots, onions, spinach, beets, collards, mushrooms, green peppers, okra and yellow squash.

Fruit attractions include giant supplies of watermelon, plus bananas, cantaloupes, rhubarb, strawberries and peaches (sale priced, in light of production one-fifth larger than last year).

Bible Reading Issue Before Constitution

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's decision this week—prohibiting states to require Bible-reading or recital of prayers in public schools—climaxed an issue which had been an issue before there was a Constitution. The court arrived at its ruling in a long, around-about way over almost 100 years. Putting this week's decision together with previous decisions of the court, this is what it all means:

Government can't support religion. Therefore, no state can require religious exercises of any kind in a public school nor can it permit use of school property for such exercises.

A system of public school education did not really begin in this country until about the 1830s. In the colonies education was almost entirely under private control, frequently by the dominant Protestant groups.

In 1786, one year before the Constitutional Convention, James Madison, an architect of the First Amendment a year later, blocked an attempt in Virginia to provide tax funds for the teaching of religion in the schools there.

The First Amendment said "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

But the amendment didn't say states couldn't pass such a law. Then the federal government got the power to tell states they must keep separate from religion with adoption of the 14th Amendment in 1868.

It said: "No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States." This meant protection for the privileges and immunities guaranteed by the First Amendment.

Yet, over the years a number of states required religious exercises in the public schools, or left the question to local communities to settle. This week's decision will probably affect a majority of the states.

Instructor Hired

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — The University of Arkansas has hired Dr. Ethel Preston Trice as head of the women's division of the physical education department. Dr. Trice is now associate professor of health and physical education at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The court started in 1872—four years after the adoption of the 14th Amendment—down the road which finally led, after many turns, to what happened this week.

That year it refused to get involved in a dispute over property between two branches of the Presbyterian Church. The court said religious bodies would be subverted if they could get secular courts to settle their differences.

Then there was a question: could Indians use money, their own but held in trust for them by the federal government, to pay their tuition in religious schools? The court said yes because to say no would infringe upon their religious freedom.

In 1879 the court upheld the right of a state to ban plural marriages by Mormons. The decision was historic. It said: While states may not interfere with mere "religious beliefs and opinions, they may with practices."

Over the years there seemed to be no end to the variety of issues. Students who went to the University of California and, under state law, had to take military training objected that it was contrary to their religious beliefs. The court overruled them.

It made a point which had great significance later. It said the students had no legitimate objection under the Constitution because they hadn't been compelled to go to that state school and could have gone elsewhere. Since they chose to go to that one, they had to comply with the state law that applied to that one.

Yet the court upheld the right of children of Jehovah's Witnesses to refuse to take part in a public school salute to the flag requirement. The court here upheld the children, saying the requirement infringed upon their free exercise of religion. How could this be, in view of the California decision?

In this case, the court said, the children had to go to the public schools and the schools had no right to require a flag-salute contrary to their religious views.

But in several memorable decisions, starting in 1947, the court began moving toward this week's decision.

It said parents living in a town where they sent their children to Roman Catholic schools could be reimbursed by the town for the transportation costs on these grounds:

"That the town (state) was not contributing to the support of the schools but was simply helping parents get their children to the schools. If this looked as if the court was breaking down the wall separating church and state, it wasn't."

In 1949 it banned a system in which religious teachers visited a

Thinks Bill on Education Was Good

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas Education Commissioner said Tuesday a bill which would authorize states to conduct surveys school weekly to give religious instruction to children who wanted it. Those who didn't were released from taking part. This was the so-called "released-time" idea.

The court banned it as violation of the First Amendment's prohibition against establishment of religion. The reason: The religious instruction was given in tax-supported schools to aid a religious group spread its faith.

But then the court, in another case, said it was all right for children to be given time off from school to get religious instruction somewhere off the school premises. The court ruled here: "The First Amendment does not say that in every and all respects there shall be a separation of church and state."

Last year the court logically followed the course it had been taking by forbidding New York to require public school children to recite a prayer composed by the school board, even though children who didn't want to take part could leave the room.

Then this week came the biggest ruling of all: the court said states couldn't require Bible-reading or prayer recital in public schools.

and establish priorities for educational needs was the best presented so far this year.

He appeared before a House Education and Labor subcommittee which heard spokesmen for state school systems urge federal aid for the nation's elementary schools without federal controls.

Ford said the bill, authored by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., "would provide a reasonable way to approach the church-state issue. The determination of the use of funds would be made by the states, which is the most feasible way, in the absence of a court decision, of resolving this highly controversial issue."

Fulbright's bill carries an appropriation of $6 million to launch the program.

Ford, head of the Council of Chief State School Officers, also approved a bill by Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Ky., to allocate federal funds, with few strings attached, on the basis of per capita wealth so poorer states would receive the greater share.

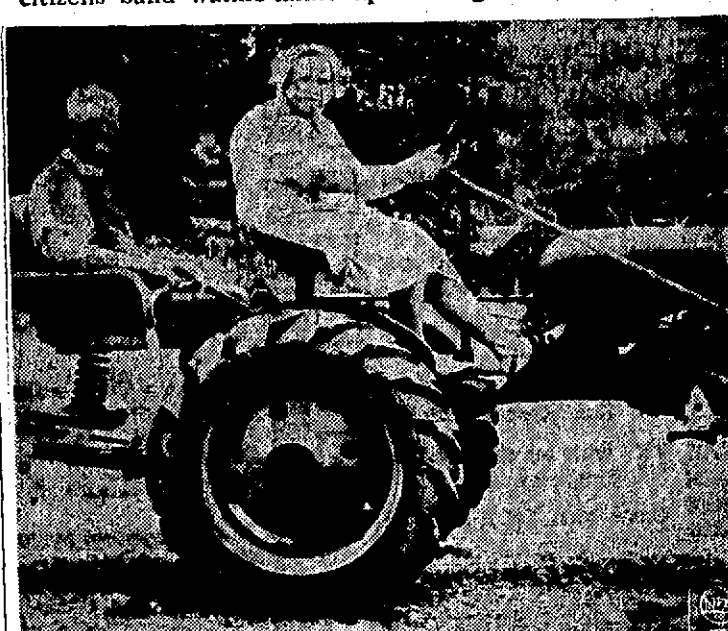

The education official said Arkansas school districts with the heaviest transportation burden are as a rule the least able financially to bear the burden of transporting pupils.

He opposed an amendment to Perkins' bill, which would allow aid only to integrated schools. The amendment was proposed by Rep. Clayton Powell, R-N.Y.

Edgar Fuller, executive secretary of the state school officers council, told the subcommittee not to "pinpoint the burden of civil rights on the schools. Make it apply to everyone."

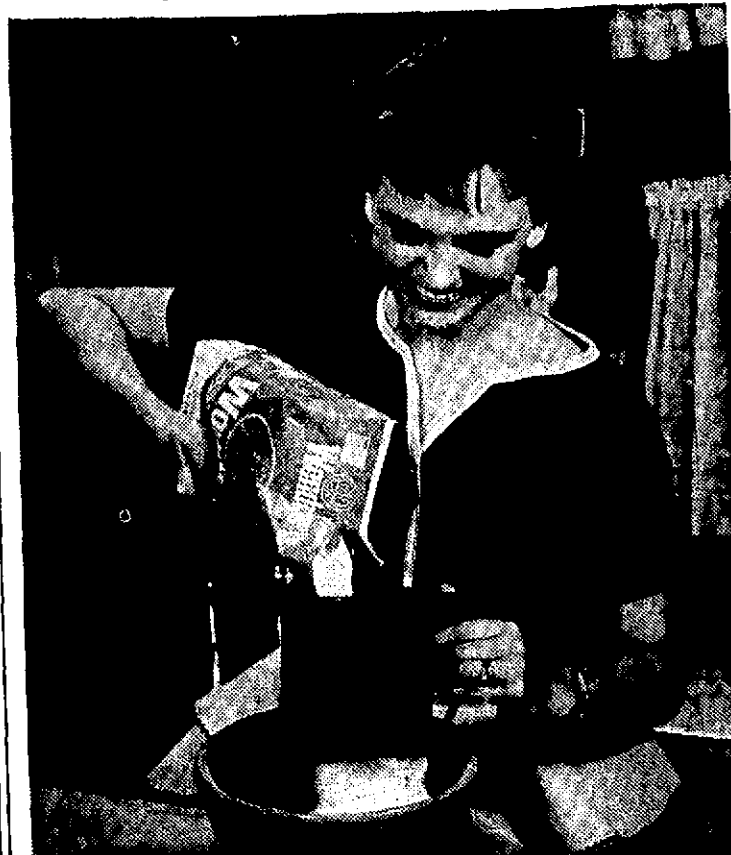

WEE WIRELESS—If engineers keep on miniaturizing electronic parts, they'll wind up not only with wristwatch radios but radios hidden in rings. A step in that direction is the tiny receiver held by Karen Speedy, secretary at Westinghouse's Baltimore Defense Center. The receiver, believed to be the world's smallest, was built to demonstrate the possibilities of molecular electronics, currently the ultimate in miniaturization. Powered by a battery held in Karen's left hand, it can receive signals transmitted by a citizens band walkie-talkie up to ranges of about a mile.

DRIVER PLUS ONE—Down in Paris, Miss., the J. E. Harmons do all their traveling on this tractor built for two. The elderly couple claims this is the only way for them to travel since neither can operate an automobile. Harmon, an 84-year-old retired farmer-teacher, takes the back seat while his wife does all the driving.

Flour Of The Future

Long-awaited relief is here from messy, dusty flour which has to be sifted, sticks to hands and makes for lumpy gravies, sauces and mixes. It is an "instantized" flour, granular and completely new in form and is to be available in August. Here are characteristics of the product:

It pours like salt and disperses instantly in liquids, hence "instantized." This makes for fool proof gravies, sauces and mixes and saves time.

It slips right through a sifter as pretty Janice Wessburg demonstrates. It is dust free and doesn't pack down.

A more uniform cup weight results from radical developments, including secret processes and specially designed equipment.

It is totally different from regular flour in appearance and feel. It works in all recipes for all-purpose flour but has led to development of new, time-saving recipes.

It comes in easy-pour bags, new for flour. It has the same nutritional value as regular enriched flour. To be marketed under the trade name "Gold Medal Wondra Instantized Flour," the product, manufactured by General Mills, Inc., represents a historical breakthrough in flour making and is called by company officials the "flour of the future."

Prevention of Cruelty to Wives

By JOY STILLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—I am about to organize a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Housewives. And once my fellow-sufferers learn what's being dreamed up for us now, they'll be lining up to join.

Having just emerged—sticky but triumphant—from the trading stamp wars, I thought perhaps I could sit in a corner for a while and lick my wounds and my stamps.

But now, to a nation of battle-scarred housewives, has come word that a new gift program is in the making to further complicate the shopping processes of the family purchasing agent.

It's called the gift star program, and while its proponents are quick to claim advantages over trading stamp plans, the two systems differ in about the same way as typhoid fever and bubonic plague. As near as my shell-shocked mind can sort out the facts, the general idea of the latest merchandising method is this:

Gift stars, aimed at building brand rather than store loyalty, will be incorporated in certain products by the manufacturer.

They will be packed in, affixed to or made a part of the label of the participating products.

After saving enough value points for her heart's desire as depicted in the gift catalog, the coupon collector sends them off in the pre-addressed mailing envelope and waits for the electronic eye to work its way through the ketchup stains and dispatch the prize by mail.

What shall I do if the grocer offers double trading stamps with the purchase of one brand of toothpaste, but a competitive brand carries a gift star certificate? Take the easy way out and start using toothpowder?

And if my stamp catalog and gift star book both offer the same item, how will I ever figure out it's "cheaper" to get it with filled stamp hooks or with coupons?

Well, I've always dreamed of being a rich old lady who did nothing but sit and clip coupons. Now it looks as though that day may come to pass before I'm either rich or old.

Jumping to Some Fine Conclusions

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Jumping to conclusions:

Aside from good health, the greatest gift the gods can give is an active sense of curiosity.

It is a form of human wealth more important than all the gold ever accumulated.

Man's progress—if it can be called that—springs almost entirely from his curiosity, and as a matter of fact a man's health can pretty well be measured by his sense of curiosity. It is when he is sick that he is inclined to feel bored, and want "to get away from it all."

Curiosity may have killed the cat, but it helps human beings to live longer—and more happily. The first sign a girl is considering marrying a man is her desire to straighten his necktie. But when she starts brushing the dandruff off the shoulders of his blue serge suit in public, he's a goner for sure.

No really good book was ever killed by a bad critic. Ironically, however, many a bad book has become popular because a good critic knocked it.

Good advice is like castor oil. It can't do you any good unless you take it.

If a visitor from Mars judged earth by what appears on television programs, he could hardly escape the conclusion that the two greatest problems facing mankind are: What kind of detergent to put in the washing machine, and whether to use a roll-on, spray or cream deodorant.

Many people take a melancholy satisfaction in having insomnia, feeling it proves that at least they are doing their fair share of the national worrying, when all it actually indicates is that they aren't getting enough physical exercise.

Those who perform some of the most essential chores in this world are most often among the poorest rewarded. A dog catcher performs a necessary service, but do you know of anybody who ever mentioned one in his will?

It's the guy who has to ask his wife for lunch money who borrows most from the other fellows in the office.

NBC Making Friends With the Golfers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The National Broadcasting Co. has been making friends with a minority group—golf-watchers—by scheduling three important tournaments among its weekend programs this month.

For the sake of both golf watchers and NBC, one hopes that next week's National Open at Brookline Mass., does not wind up as did the telecast of Sunday's Thunderbird Tournament, with the outcome to be decided off camera.

As Arnold Palmer and Paul Harney battled it out on the 18th hole Sunday, the suspense was almost unbearable. Bud Palmer communicated the tension when his voice dropped to a whisper as he said, "If Palmer sinks this putt he will win the tournament."

Palmer missed the putt and tied with Harney. The next moment, Palmer was calmly telling us there would be an immediate sudden death playoff and advising us to follow it—on radio.

Presumably, a lot of people who were all wrapped up in the game sort of in disappointment and disgust when NBC moved back to regular programming—a rerun of a feeble comedy series called "McKeever and the Colonel."

The network had already skipped "Meet the Press" to stay with the tournament, but calling it quits before the final playoff won by Palmer was like chopping off a whodunit just before revealing that the butler was the culprit.

NBC cancelled tonight's "Chet Huntley Reporting" for one of its "instant news specials" analyzing Britain's Profumo affair.

The network's flexible news department also put together a special half-hour report Monday night about the Supreme Court decision on Bible reading in the public schools. It stole a march on "CBS Reports" which will give the decision a more elaborate analysis and commentary Wednesday evening.

While the entertainment departments of network television have slipped into vacation-time languor the news departments are buzzing with activity.

All the networks will cover President Kennedy's scheduled European trip with huge staffs. All plan many special programs covering every stop of his journey.

"Alp" is a term applied to the summer pastures of the Alpine mountains. Situated just below the snow line, they are freed from snow each spring and become the centers of pastoral life. On each alp are several huts for the goatherds and cheesemakers who live with their flock from the end of June to end of September.
